

March 2017 Resident Spotlight:

Nicholas Vasquez

The great Lin-Manuel Miranda said as Alexander Hamilton, “I am not throwing away my shot.” That’s who Nicholas Vasquez is. Today he has the opportunity to make a difference within the residence halls of The University of Texas at Austin, and he is not WILLING TO WAIT FOR IT and start doing something. During the month of February, his work has been noticed because not only does it affect the University Residence Hall Association (URHA) where he’s president, but also NRHH, where he’s the Vice-President of Administration and Finance. For NRHH, he has taken the initiative of creating a bulletin board in the biggest residence on campus that provides information of NRHH. It also contains information on how to get involved, plus it is updated frequently with service opportunities that residents have the opportunity of participating in. This bulletin board is one of the most notable on campus. Nick decided to do this by himself, noting that it was important to expand the reach that NRHH had, not only for its members, but for all residents on campus, and although HE MAY NOT LIVE TO SEE HIS GLORY, residents will.
